

The Benefits of Outsourced Cloud Accounting

By Kari Eaton, Staff Accountant/Outsourced Accounting Services

Why the Cloud? The Cloud is a simple, efficient, and secure way to access any information at the push of a button. With the Cloud, individuals have access to any and all information at any time. They have access to a wealth of relevant information from nearly unlimited resources. The Cloud offers an added security that your information will never be lost in an accident or computer malfunction. Through the use of the Cloud, individuals can be connected to their information at the office, at home, or anywhere they have their mobile device. If photos, home information, and business models can be easily stored in the Cloud, the natural next step would be to have financial information readily available as well.

Why Cloud Accounting? Cloud accounting, or online accounting, runs like accounting software you would load on your computer. Instead of loading software, everything you need is on secure Internet servers you can access from any computer or mobile device. Intacct is a great Internet server to use when beginning Cloud accounting. Intacct was built for CPA client accounting services approximately 12 years ago. Financial professionals designed Intacct for financial organizations, so you know your finances are in capable hands. Intacct provides user-friendly financial software that keeps the client's needs in mind. At any time, a user can access real time financial information from Intacct's Cloud platform. Intacct partners with Valued Added Reseller (VAR), which sells software subscriptions (license) and is responsible for designing and implementing platform, and Business Process Outsourcing (BPO), which provides outsourced accounting services.

Why Outsource? Outsourcing is a great way to have services fulfilled while saving your company money. Salmon Sims Thomas partner, Rebecca DaVee leads the company's Intacct BPO (Business Process Outsourcing) department. DaVee's team is centered on providing accounting services to non-profit organizations from remote locations. Through Intacct's Cloud accounting platform, the team can manage organizations' financial documents including tax information without bombarding the organizations' home offices. Outsourced accounting offers your business professional services at a fraction of the cost; a team of educated, focused accountants and bookkeepers; and access to top systems and services. Most importantly, outsourced accounting services gives you time to focus on what is important to you. You will have time to focus on developing your business or organization while having peace of mind that the finances are in good hands.

For more information about how outsourced accounting services can make your business more efficient, please contact Becky Davee.